

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The only Democrat to adopt a sly, backhanded touch of good-natured ridicule in the pre-1956 attack on President Eisenhower's policies and politics is a senator not noted for wit or humor, and he did it only in his State.

Humphrey, Minnesota, co-leader of the opposition's left wing:

"In the closing days of Congress, the man who had been instrumental in the second-class mail bill, and who was the post office in Twin Falls, was the art of March 8, 1956.

SMILE DIPLOMACY

Some of our marriage specialists say that the people most likely to make a success of their marriages are those who refuse to allow any differences to become big enough to break up the relationship.

One might say that lately President Eisenhower and Premier Bulganin of the Soviet union have been acting like a married pair determined to let nothing spoil their blissful state.

Perhaps the outstanding impression gained from the Big Four meeting at Geneva was the resolve on all sides to keep smiling through every difficulty.

More recently the world was treated to an even more striking example of this developing attitude in both the United States and the Soviet union.

Bulgaria offered the Soviet assembly a basically sympathetic report on Geneva, but, according to rejet Mr. Eisenhower's plan for mutual U.S.-S.R. inspection of their military installations.

The President refused to take the statement as it seemed to be meant. He said the Russians had not really closed the door on his plan, but simply expressed a preference for a disarmament program of their own—one they had advanced last May 10.

The very next day, Bulganin picked up where the President had left off. He said his earlier remarks had been misunderstood, that Russia was not refusing to find ways other than its own for solving the touch disarmament problem.

This sort of exchanges is plainly significant.

It should be noted that the mood of Geneva was no accident. Both sides are intent on keeping their voices down. They mean to preserve the civilities at least long enough to find out whether any progress is possible on the real substance of their differences.

Other conferences in the weeks and months ahead will decide that question.

All that can be said now is that the atmosphere established and being maintained with painstaking care by U.S. and Russian leaders alike is moderately hopeful. And after the grim history of the last decade, that alone is quite a statement. But we should not forget that these differences are very great.

LESSON FOR OFFICE-HOLDERS

When a man assumes public office, he knows that he must adhere to the highest standards of ethical behavior. But that is not enough.

Such a man must avoid not only evil, but the faintest appearance of evil.

This Harold Talbott failed to do as secretary of the air force. And that made his resignation necessary and inevitable.

During his tenure in public office, Talbott retained a limited partnership in a management engineering firm known as Paul B. Mulligan and company, some of whose clients had contracts with the government.

When a committee was presented to an investigating senate committee that Talbott used his high position to compel defense contractors to favor the Mulligan firm.

But, acting as a private business man from his Pentagon office, he did things whose effect was to promote his private business, which yielded him about $60,000 a year. He wrote private business letters on air force stationery, and used air force personnel in what amounted to promotional efforts.

This was inexcusable, and shows that Talbott failed to understand the full nature of his responsibilities. So it is that President Eisenhower, while praising Talbott for his able service to the government, and he made the difficult decision in resigning.

Talbott's unhappy experience may have value if it serves as a sharp reminder to others what the standards of public behavior must be.

ANTI-GIVEAWAY SPIRIT

Although the anti-giveaway spirit has been most marked in the field of foreign affairs, congress extended it to domestic problems.

It's financing of a new highway system through issue of non-governmental bonds was derailed on the ground that the extra cost, which was estimated at more than 10 billion dollars, would be borne on the taxpayers for the benefit of a few bankers and security dealers. For similar reasons, his elaborate public housing program was trimmed.

Another thrust at "giveaways" was the senator's refusal even to consider the house bill increasing farm support price to the old figure of 90 per cent.

Even Treasury Secretary Humphrey caught the fever.

For financial and political reasons, he pleaded for termination or revision of the "fast tax writeoff" procedure, under which great corporations save millions at the expense of public welfare.

Humphrey also favored a scheme under which state and local enterprises as TVA would pay taxes comparable with those of private competitors, and also burn money at going interest rates instead of tapping the public till.

Not all of these "charity begins at home" measures were achieved—at the recent session. But the mere attempt at them marks a reversal of policies and attitudes that have prevailed since before Pearl Harbor.

It's hard to find your place in the sun when you stay out all night and sleep all day.

THE AIR FORCE

The air force, which has always been to believe, until recently, that its job was to be a military unit, has now decided that its job is to be a new form of "silver-linings" as soon as it can get out, into its present kind of captions. What is more important is to keep serving in its places, for uniform will have to be changed.

This will enable airmen to catch up with the comfort increasingly enjoyed by civilians in recent months, and to keep up with the topographical difficulties for decades. The air force is changing.

We can predict with reasonable assurance that after a few more years it is going to be indistinguishable from the "silver-shak" which started life as a middle eastern word meaning "dust-colored"—Chicago Daily News.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

WHEN I'M GONE

Here's a toast that I want to drink to the fellow who's going to take my place when it's time for me to go.

I've wondered what kind of a chap I've wished I could take his hand.

Just to wish him well in the kindest way so he could

I'd like to give him the cheering

wind that I longed at times to hear.

I'd like to give him the warm hand that never a friend seemed near.

I've learned my knowledge by sheer hard work and I wish I could

To the fellow whom'll come to take my place, some day when

I'm gone.

Will you ever make the mistakes

I've made and note all the bad battles lost?

Will he ever guess the fears they

cause the heartaches

Will he ever

face the failures and the underlying plan?

And take the place of the rest

and the vanquished man?

Then here's to you, youth, old chap, I drink a glass to you,

but I know how hard I've tried,

I've tried to be a good citizen as often as never, but never a one came true.

So my prayer today is that all my dreams may be realized by you, and that you'll be the greatest city or business in the world.

There, all failures will be reached in the light of a new-found

Today I'm drinking to your health

today, you'll take my place

when I'm gone.

Portion of 21 Blast Victims Unidentified

ANDOVER, O. Aug. 12 (AP)—Half the victims of a roaring explosion and fire that left at least 21 people dead in a gas station in the Owyhee County community remained unidentified last night.

Firemen, air force men and the volunteers of the local Red Cross worked from a block-long row of buildings for more victims. Many of the town's 1,200 residents streamed into the gas station, which had exploded in a garage three blocks from the village square in an effort to determine the identity of the dead.

Most of the bodies were burned beyond recognition, with the result that only seven had been positively identified. One of these, a 10-year-old boy, was later identified.

Two others were reported missing and at least 21 were injured.

The tragedy apparently occurred during a violent thunderstorm that already had knocked out communications here. Center of the community is a gas station in the village square, where some of the victims had taken refuge from the storm.

With such force that it shook the whole town, the explosion disintegrated a two-story frame building containing the restaurant and gas station. The intense fire spread to nearby buildings.

Cause of the blast was not definitely determined, but some from Twin Falls said it might have been caused by sewer gas backed up by clogged drains.

Freeze for Beef Price Tested to Show up Faults

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (AP)—The cattle and beef market in the West last week clearly indicated that a freeze of cattle and beef prices in any national emergency would fail to stabilize market prices and upset the meat market.

Instead, the industry said, a freeze would result in extreme shortages in anticipation of higher prices later, and distortions in supplies among regions, cities, retail stores and packers.

Other consequences of a freeze's order, it said, would be increases in beef prices through dubious methods and a deadlocked, "stalemate" enforcement problem.

REVENUE REPORTED
BOISE, Aug. 12 (UPI)—The police department men made 225 arrests and took in $50,511 last month, Sup. A. E. Perkins reported yesterday. Fines accounted for $4,288 of the total.

Here to Learn U.S. Farm Methods

Three India exchange students arrived in Twin Falls Thursday to spend three weeks at various farms studying American farming methods. Donald Yount, right, assistant county extension agent, met the boys.

Trio of India Farmers Arrive in T. F. In Study of Magic Valley Agriculture

Three young men from India arrived in Twin Falls in Magic Valley this morning under the sponsorship of the National 4-H Club foundation and the Conservation Foundation. The students are Devide, Bodade, 26, Madhya Pradesh, India; M. Krishna, 26, Hyderabad, and Rajendra, Farmer, 27, Himachal Pradesh, India.

During their visit here Bodade will live with the Lester Stubbs family, 1000 E. Kenyon, and the District with the Jack Edwards family, and Farmer with the Earl Heidle family, route 2, Bush.

Bodade is a graduate of Nagpur university and owns 1000 acres, four of them irrigated, in Madhya Pradesh. His major crops include cotton, wheat, and Indian corn. He also has 1000 sheep, 1000 cows and six water buffalo.

Krishna, who has five brothers and two sisters, made an agricultural tour of the West Coast.

His owns and works 210 acres, of which 150 are tillable and 50 are irrigated. Principal crops are 1000 millet, 1000 vegetables. His livestock includes cattle and water buffalo.

The fact that highway speed laws are not really set by any scientific study of safety, but just seem to be arbitrary, is especially apparent when you drive through the U.S. You may cross two or three states in a day, and find the speed limit jumps up and down between 50-85 mph.

The American Automobile Association recently proposed a new method for setting highway speed limits. The idea is to let motorists themselves decide what a safe speed is.

It's done, like so many things these days, with radar. The AAA has found that a safe speed is usually the speed travelled by 85 per cent of drivers on any particular road. So the AAA has proposed that speed limits be raised in Nebraska, and, in fact, in most states, many of which are so unreasonably low, be abolished in favor of the speed that radar devices show is the usual speed of 85 per cent of motorists.

Figures I polled recently showed that, contrary to what many people believe, most highway accidents don't happen at high speeds. A study in Nebraska established that 73 per cent of all accidents occurred at less than 20 miles per hour. Speed limits were raised in Nebraska, but accidents were reduced. The reason is that the cars on the highway didn't change at all which only went to prove drivers were ignoring old speed limits anyway and that 85 mph was a safe speed.

You just have to conclude that most speed limits are ordinary people with good horse sense. We think so, so we help build our good name in the used car business by giving year-in, year-out value and satisfaction. Our best advertisement is the number of people who've come back time after time to buy cars from us.

Idaho to Get High Federal Forest Fund

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (Special)—The state of Idaho next year will receive the third highest federal allotment for national forest highway maintenance, department of commerce announces.

Idaho's share of the overall $250,000 will be $200,177, or over ten per cent of the national figure.

Oregon, California, (322,218), and Oregon, (30,082,278) will receive larger federal outlays for forest roads.

In making the announcement, Commerce Secretary Sinclair Weeks said the allocations were made on the basis of "the area and value of the roads to be maintained certified by the secretary of agriculture."

Recipient of the smallest federal expenditure in the fiscal year 1957 will be North Dakota, which is scheduled for a mere $80 payment.

Other states receiving apportionments over a million dollars are: Montana, $322,000; Minnesota, Washington and Alaska.
